CENTENNIAL NUMBER

Greeting

If we offend, it is with our good will,
That you should think, we came
not to offend;
But with good will to show our simple skill
That is the true beginning of our end,
Consider then we come, but in despite,
We do not come as minding to content you,
Our true intent is all for your delight.

ALEXANDER CAMPBELL, FATHER OF BETHANY

Dedication

We take great pleasure in dedicating this volume to him who has won a lasting place in the hearts and minds of the Bethany College students by his courteous and dignified manner.

His master mind with its philosophical bent, his broad vision of truth have opened new and unexpected vistas to many students and have truly been an inspiration to all who have come in contact with him.

To Professor Philip Johnson
the Bethanian of Nineteen Hundred and Nine is respectfully and gratefully dedicated.

FOREWORD

Another June has come marking the close of a year which has afforded the following material for our College Annual.

Our desire has been to present, in the following pages, a fair and impartial representation of our Alma Mater in every aspect of college life. We have desired to acquaint our readers with the sentiment and opinion of the whole institution, rather than the prejudices and personal feelings of any individual class or faction.

We do not present this volume because of its literary and artistic value, but because it has felt the vital touch of those with whom we have associated during our college course. We hope that in the years which will come its pages may call to memory the pleasant days spent at Dear Old Bethany.

If in the days to come, when these leaves are turned again in memory of past years, this record of Bethany happenings shall serve to awaken pleasant recollections of good times gone by, and to revive the happy scenes of undergraduate days, we shall feel that our efforts have not gone unrewarded.

Formerly our Annual has been published under the name, The Kodak, but this year it has been changed to "Bethanian," because this name is deemed more dignified and appropriate.

Credit for suggesting and arranging the new name is due the following persons: Prof. M. A. Stewart, Mr. W. L. Linville and Mr. Herbert Smith.

With greetings and best wishes we present to our readers the Bethanian of 1909.

THE EDITORS.

Senior Class History

The Fall of 1905 ushered into Bethany a class known as Freshmen— as unsophisticated a group as one could hope to see. The first year is always the most trying in the whole career of a class, for it is then the test for valor, for endurance, and for pluck, is made. The class, destined to be the Seniors of '09, made a most creditable showing at this trying period, and the promise it gave as a Freshman class has been fully realized as the years passed by.

We look back over our past record with pride. The battle has been to the strong, and though there have been defeats mixed with the victories, and discouragements among the properities, we feel that as a class, we have something to boast about. It means something to be the largest class ever graduated from Bethany College; and it means a vast deal more to be the Centennial class—the Class of 1909.

The future looks bright to us—the open road of life stretches before us an alluring invitation. The regret which is natural at leaving these College halls, grown dear to us, is overbalanced by the eagerness we feel to get in line with the great army of the world's workers.

Our farewell to Bethany will be sad necessarily—but each of us leave with the firm determination to be an honor to our dear Alma Mater.

So farewell to Bethany—Bethany of the sunlit hills and mountain-tops. We shall ever keep thy memory green in our hearts—and though years may pass er'e we see thee again, thy influence shall live in our lives.

*The Junior Class Historian requested each member of the Class to send him their write up and this is what he received. ? ? ?

Out of chaos and confusion I have come as a messenger of peace and good will. Glad tidings do I bring unto the world. If you do not desire my aid I will politely thrust myself upon you. Gifted with poetry and song I esteem myself one of Bethany's most charming young ladies. With dark hair and eyes, I stand a figure of admiration. Success has crowned my work at Bethany, and now I feel prepared for life's duties.

Truly Yours,
MAUD M. JOHNSON.

HISTORIAN :—

While I do not take a leading part in the moving affairs of college life, yet I am aware of all that is being done. My one object is to thoroughly prepare myself for life's duties whatever they may be. I think that the spirit of reserve is most complimentary. That's why I'm so reserved. But watch, you will hear from me some day.

Truly Yours,
LETHA MADDEN.

DEAR EDITOR :—

I am like the peaceful brook that flows along the roadside, still, quiet and harmless, yet doing my duty as a man. I have an eternal hatred for wrong, and an equal amount of reverence for right. I live for one purpose and that is to exalt truth. May my peaceful life be in some way an incentive for good to those who need help.

Very Respectfully,
A. F. HAINES.

JUNIOR EDITOR :—

I am of small stature, but great in mental capacity. I am in school for culture. That is why I am taking the Ministerial course. I think the study of the Bible gives more culture than Mathematics. I asked Prof. Neff concerning the matter and he said he thought so too. Well then I am on the right road to popularity and success. I do not fear any thing except "biz."

Sincerely,
EDITH ZOE MERCER.

DEAR HISTORIAN :—

West Virginia has always produced great men and I am no exception to the rule.

Often it requires several years to "Know Thyself" but I have at last done so and am almost prepared for life's battles.

After being graduated from Bethany College I expect to study Law and feel confident of being successful. There is still plenty of room for good men and I expect to find a vacant place, if not, I'll make one.

Respectfully,
L. C. CORNETT.

DEAR EDITOR:—

I am one of the best preachers in the Christian Brotherhood and by far the most prominent ministerial student in College. At present I am student pastor of the First Christian Church at Smithfield, Ohio, a church which in every way is a model apostolic church. In college affairs I am continually having honors thrust upon me.

I am sure no person in the ranks of '10 could have filled so efficiently the office of Class Historian. The personal "write up" and History speak for themselves.

Yours Truly,

B. R. JOHNSON.

MY DEAR EDITOR:—

You have asked for my write up and then limited me to seventy-five words. Really I couldn't tell half I should like to tell even in ten times as much space. As you all know I am a married man from Michigan and very proud of the fact. I am a preacher with wonderful ability and the people at Statt's Run Church can testify to this fact. About College I am a very prominent man. I am one of the six men who control athletics here. I am also a "ringer" in the Y. M. C. A. and editor-in-chief of the Collegian. See some of my editorials in the Collegian on reform and then see what you think of me. Look out for me I am a wonder.

Yours,

H. H. ANDERSON.

CLASS EDITOR:—

I am now standing at the portal of the future with an ancestry complimentary to a king and talents for all vocations of life. I am ready to enter the unexplored fields. I shall travel where no foot has trod, and pave the way to peace and happiness for millions yet unborn. I know a scheme pertaining to the complexities of life when once made known to the world will revolutionize thought, transform the modern life, and give a new incentive to the inquiring mind for truth.

Truly Yours,

W. H. CRAMBLET.

COMPILER OF JUNIOR HISTORY:—

I am a Greek student and a Church Historian; my aim in life is to present to the world the Church of Christ in its various forms as it has come through time. With my power as an orator, talent as a thinker, and genius as a writer I think that I shall be able to fathom the depths of the remote past and bring to light the long hidden truth that the world so badly needs. How did you like my last Junior Oration?

Yours Transubstantially,

IRA P. HARBAUGH.

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORIAN:—

Philosophy, Art, Chemistry, Mathematics, English, Physics, Botany, Missions; I have studied them all, and am therefore a walking library. I never go down the street with less than ten books under my arm and never more than twenty-five. The reason why I do not carry more is because twenty-five would tax my capacity to its uttermost, and I might share the fate of the "Wonderful One Horse Shay."

Respectfully Yours,

C. V. DUNN.

EDITORS:—

I am a natural born orator. I expect to rescue the present age from the dark shadows of obscurity and bear it aloft to the realms of immortality upon golden wings of oratory. I expect to restore this long lost art. I am a Cicero, a Demosthenes, a Webster, in me may be found the combined talents of the great orators of the past. I am not a product of this age. I am John the Baptist in the wilderness preparing the way for the 20th century oratory. I could write much more but I am manager of the Bethanian and am rushed for time.

Hastily,

J. G. SMITH.

DEAR HISTORIAN:—

Above all things I am perfectly square. I mean by this that my conduct is such as commendable, and of which I am not ashamed. I have never used a pony in Latin or Greek. So my conscience is clear. Most of the boys think I am a pretty good fellow and I think so too. I am not much of an athlete; or sport but a common student desirous of an education; so you see why I have never bizzed.

Sincerely,

C. J. RAMSEY.

EDITOR:—

I am a student of no mean ability even though I do spend considerable time on "biz." There are other things in college life besides work and I think "biz" is one of them. My motto has always been "The uttermost for the highest" I have attained the "uttermost" and am now on my way to the "highest."

In college affairs I am to take an active part in everything that is of benefit to Old Bethany and always stand ready to exalt her fair name.

What do you think of the Bethanian? I had the honor of being assistant editor of it this year.

Truly Yours,

W. H. McLAIN.

DEAR HISTORIAN:—

I live in historic Bethany. I can remember the vice-presidents of the college back to Archie Mercer. But I do not live in the past for I am in the French and German department. More than that, Art has attracted me and you can judge whether or not I have talent by my work in this Bethanian. Some persons think that I like to have a good time and to dress up, but as to that I won't say. Perhaps you could recognize me by my always saying "Oui," "Oui."

Yours, Maybe,

GARDA BACHELL.

JUNIOR CLASS EDITOR:—

I am a combination of seriousness and dignity—serious, because life is serious—dignity, because the priest demands it. I am a man for the hour. I well know how to adapt myself to any and all circumstances. I can play a piano; sing a solo, entertain in kinds of society and move off among men like a fish in water. It might also be of interest to you to know that I am from Shelby, Ohio.

Yours in the Faith,

C. A. HANNA.

CLASS EDITOR:—

The best thing I can say of myself is that I am a student of much ability although you would never guess it. In college affairs I am more prominent in social circles than anywhere else. Each year I try to get a new girl and thus far have been very successful. Of course, I haven't always found the way of the "bizite" easy but that makes no difference. We all have our troubles with it and I have forgotten mine long ago.

After graduating I expect to preach and feel very confident that I will make good.

Sincerely,

C. F. EVANS.

JUNIOR HISTORIAN:—

I am going to be graduated in the Scientific course. Since I came to Bethany I have made good in everything. It was a long time before I attempted "biz," but I find that I am a star in it. My business in life will be that of an old scout. I will play third in the American League and follow the footsteps of my father as Bursar of Bethany College.

Heartily Yours,

FRANK N. McEVOY.

DEAR EDITOR:—

It seems to me that I am a very important man in the affairs of Bethany College. I have been President of the Y. M. C. A. and I dare say that every one in school, from the least to the greatest, knew it at the time. I have a good heart in me. It is true that I make some mistakes but back of it all is a good purpose. Just think I never played foot ball or base ball in my life, but out of my abundant resource of such things I have been chosen Athletic Editor of the Bethanian. There is no impedient to my way to success.

Yours,

WALTER W. BRUNS.

EDITOR BETHANIAN:—

I keep myself in a quiet corner. Once have I ventured into the complexities of "biz." Its road was so difficult that I have withdrawn to a place of solitude, to ponder over what might have been. I will remove the burden of my broken heart by a deep study in Greek and a little sport on the athletic field. Had I not a glorious future my life would sink in despair.

In Haste,

W. F. CORWIN.

DEAR EDITOR:—

Every one knows me as "Bob" and by my long steps. I specialize in all line of college activity except "biz." My ambitions are; to be a good fellow, and to appear reserved and sedate. I hope some day to be America's foremost physician and for this reason I have passed up the girls and athletics and have committed all the medical books I can find. At present I am working on Martin's Human Body. I am even radical enough to believe that man was not made for woman.

Respectfully,

F. E. ROBERTS.

JUNIOR EDITOR:—

I am in the toils of Cupid. My heart is fixed between the darts, and I dare not swerve. I have an eternal hatred for Greek, and its various forms regular, irregular, smooth, and rough, past and present, it sets the wheels in my head running at random which spell out Flunk. Deliver me, a preacher don't need Greek, that's what I'm going to be.

Respectfully,

T. B. IMHOFF.

MY DEAR HISTORIAN:—

I think that by the late removal of my tonsils I shall be able to execute my long coveted plan. Before this event the fates seemed to be against me, but now my voice has been restored two-fold, and my future allures me. Then is no doubt, now, but what I shall be a great preacher. I used to be called "preacherette," While this name was very applicable to me at that time, yet it sinks into utter insignificance when compared to The Rev. Mr. L. F. Carter, A. M., D. D.

Very Nearly Yours,

L. F. CARTER.

MY DEAR HISTORIAN:—

I am a true "bizite." Every morning I may be seen on the corridor. I feel that I have not been esteemed in Bethany as I deserve. Many of the student body have never learned of my powers, or know my turn of mind. I am a real benefactor, and a lack of opportunity to exercise my ability and to manifest my benevolent spirit dwarfs my susceptibilities. I hope that by my senior year my worth shall be felt and I shall have ample opportunity to be a present help in every kind of trouble.

Yours Very Respectfully,

PERRY A. JONES.

SIR:—

I am all alone in the world and in the solitude of my own self I am planning for the future. Never again shall I break my silent companionship by the association of others. I once sipped the nectar from Cupid's lips, but as I reached my arms to embrace, it took its flight and left me to linger around the graves of departed hopes. The vacancy in my bosom shall never be filled and I am doomed to live alone. As a benefactor of the world I must be sought.

Yours Truly,

W. A. BLAIR.

DEAR EDITOR:—

I am certainly very grateful to you for this opportunity of getting before the public. It has always been my ambition to be a prominent man and I think this a splendid opportunity to attain some prominence. In College most of my work has been in the Music Department and as a result of this training I have developed into a very prominent vocalist. My songs never fail to please. I have appeared several times during the past season before the elite of the college and each time my efforts have been crowned with success. After being graduated from Bethany I expect to spend my life singing in Grand Opera.

Yours,

J. I. WINEKE

I look a little sleepy, but this is due to over study and confinement. Of all men I am most awake. I know my business and attend to it. That of others I am not concerned. My father is a lawyer and I have imbibed his traits. That accounts for my ability as an orator. Give me a chance and the world is mine, and if no chance is given I will make one.

Yours Truly,
G. D. RAMSEY.

DEAR EDITOR:—

Nobody has ever guessed what I am going to be in the drama of human affairs. In fact, you could not guess. Since my arrival at Bethany I have been cut loose from my mother's apron strings, and have ventured out into the sea of life and have wrestled with its problems. I find they are easy. It is for me to search out the vast unknown, and bring to light the knowledge that a thousand years of our present thought would take to a discover. I have visions that are not common to the general human mind. I see through the surface of all things, and delve into the remote recesses of reason. My mind soars up and up and up and up and up.

Affectionately,
D. C. HUGHES.

MY DEAR EDITOR:—

I am a foot ball man, "bizite," student and good fellow. Aside from that, about the only thing worth mentioning is that once I helped a student prepare a sermon which was really a master-piece.

I have all kinds of good friends about College and am entirely satisfied. I have a great mind but think it is too much trouble to use it, so I try and take life easy.

Next year I expect to have on the gridiron the best foot ball team Bethany has ever had.

Sincerely,
JAMES H. CHAPMAN.

DEAR EDITOR:—

I was born an indefinite number of years ago in Tyler County, W. Va. Since then I have led a career fashioned by various motives and intentions but governed by no particular purpose. In medical college I demonstrated my ability as a student and my skill with the knife but was compelled, from various causes, to give up my work there. The one hope of my life now is to graduate from college, settle down in a home of my own and spend my days as an educator.

The only regret of my life is that owing to the strenuous life I have been compelled to live I have been obliged to neglect associating with ladies as much as I desired to. At present, however, I am trying to make up for lost time.

Thanking you very much for this opportunity to get before the public my record, I am.

Yours Truly,
S. C. UNDERWOOD.

EDITORIAL BOARD:—

I do not believe in the foolishness of youth; neither do I think a fellow has to be good looking in order to command the sincere attentions of a girl. I am determined to prove to the world that any one can gain success even though they be handicapped by being a woman. I am always anxious to tell you a bit of my mind if it won't put you out of the way, for I feel very certain that you will find that there is wisdom in all that I say.

Yours Truly,
RUTH McCAMMON.

DEAR HISTORIAN:—

You would hardly believe that this is from a bashful person but I could scarcely be persuaded to have my name appear at all. I really think that Bethany is the best although Ohio Wesleyan is certainly second. Nevertheless, I have almost forgotten the latter college since I have been in Bethany. I especially delight to walk the corridor, but I know I should be terribly frightened if a boy were to walk with me.

Very Truly,

IVA GERTRUDE BRASHEAR.

CLASS EDITOR:—

Perhaps you would know me better if I tell you my name is "Diz." Where that name ever came from I don't know, but never mind, that has nothing to do with my personal history.

In athletics I have been very prominent. At foot ball I made good long ago and my prospects in base ball allure me. At tennis I have been very unfortunate because to be a good man at tennis one must have a desperate "biz" case in order to get the most out of the game, but sad to say I never have made good at "biz" although I am still hopeful. In College, mathematics is my favorite study.

Truly,

HARRY AITKEN.

EDITOR:—

I am from the hills of West Virginia. Having a home situated among beautiful fields and woods. I have the spirit of the Maid of Orleans, and I can see no reason why I should not lead an army to such a victory as did the famous Joan of Arc. Not under the attire of war but in the garb of peace.

Sincerely,

ELIZABETH GATTS.

Junior Class History

We have been asked to record the history of a class that stands unparalleled in the history of our college. In reading the history of the various classes since the establishment of this institution I find no words or phrases that help me to give an adequate conception of our place and standing, thus I am compelled to draw our words from the resourceful vocabularies of our own number to frame the thoughts pertaining to our growth and progress.

As this history will be read by a large circle of friends and relatives, and no doubt by posterity, the reader will pardon me if I soar in the atmosphere of eulogy in emulating the record of this class, which it so fittingly deserves, and without such its history could not be correctly written. As our space is limited our story must abound in figures of speech, ranging from the sublime to the ridiculous.

Again, as history is facts which cluster about personalities, so the greater the personality the greater the history: and as the Junior class stands united for the highest and the best of our history is most deserving.

A class of such distinction and honor deserves a detailed history from its beginning.

It was late in September of '06 that a happy band of thirty fine young men and women left their homes in distant countries to meet around the hallowed hills of Old Bethany. Some desiring to be ministers, and missionaries, doctors and lawyers, while others were seeking an education for the sake of its culture and refinement.

With high ideals and aspiring hopes this happy band entered upon its career diligently and bravely. Diligent in study, brave on the field of conquest. As Freshies and Sophs their colors of blue and gold waved undaunted in the breeze, announcing victory amid shouts of triumph. In Literary and Athletic lines we have contributed our share of laurels to the crown of Bethany.

As Freshies we had our number which well bore the name; but being of such a temperament as could well adapt themselves to their growing environment they kept pace with the outside world, and took part in its manipulation when we donned the name of "Soph" we at once realized our position in college life, and thus knowing our responsibility and duties, we did not hesitate to perform them. What then should we expect? Why the very thing that is most natural under such circumstances.

Did it happen? Ask those who were freshies the year we were Sophs!

After the class scrap which occurred late in our Sophomore year, and which had been a complete victory to our credit, we settled down to a calmer life.

Since then our mind has been turned toward the future. The unexplored fields which lie before us invite us into their harvest. As Juniors we have preserved our dignity and added our share of honor to class history. Only once have we entered into the spirit of battle, and that was out of pure sympathy for the breathless Sophs. At the nick of time one of our brave Juniors came to the rescue of the Sophomore class and scaled the old sycamore while being beaten and bruised, to lower the colors of the Freshmen, giving honor to their opponents, while in truth it belongs to the class of '10.

As the year closes and summer greets us with its breezes and songs, birds and flowers I hope for the Juniors of '09 a most happy and most pleasant vacation and may we return to assume the duties of our senior year with the same happy spirit that has always been ours, and may the loyal friendship exist there that has always been marked in our Junior life.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

Sophomore Class History

We, as the Sophomore class of '09 have entered school, realizing the value and necessity of a higher education.

By using the powers of our minds and bodies, while being surrounded by the uplifting influence of its patrons and friends, we shall aim to advance the high standard of scholarship that Bethany has long maintained.

Although temptations intrude our path, and trials encompass us, it is the purpose of the class of 1911 to grasp every opportunity offered to make our characters firm and noble, so that we may be equipped with the power to strike, with a conquering force, the tasks of life, whatever that may be. To aid in overcoming these tasks, self reliance is of vital importance, and we feel sure that this additional element is possessed, to a safe degree, by each member of the Sophomore class.

Ours is a large and ambitious class. We have already displayed much energy in the class room, as well as on the field of battle, the Sophomore-Freshman scrap.

To many of us, this annual scrap did not contain many of the characteristics that usually go with those familiar games of our childhood, "Ring Around Rosy" and "Drop the Kerchief," but it ended, however, in a glorious victory for our class, the Sophs.

How patiently those noble Freshmen lay in the Gymn, their hands and feet yielding to the influence of a clothes line, awaiting their summons to the scene of action, to witness their pride, the Gold and Black, being distributed as keepsakes among their worthy victors!

Nevertheless this incident, which is now only a matter of history, enabled us to become better acquainted with, and gave us more abiding faith in those who are following us—the Freshmen.

The Sophomore class is well represented in all religious, literary, athletic and social organizations of the college. By earnestly participating in these organizations, we hope to achieve especial honor for the class of 1911, so that it may contribute equal benefit to the glory of old Bethany.

Let us, therefore, hope that we may be able not only, to raise the banner of honor, during our college days, but carry it high so that it may remain untarnished throughout our lives.

Freshman Class History

The Freshman Class arrived at Bethany on time and after being subjected to the abuse of the Sophomores for several days decided that "in unity there is strength," and organized with Robert Hueston, President, George Owens, Vice-President, George Neil, Secretary, Wilber Carter, Treasurer, and James Carter, Captain of the Campus.

This movement aroused new opposition from the Sophomores, and they, to their shame be it said, showed their animosity by cutting our President's hair, thus putting him at a disadvantage with the fair sex until Xmas. This outrage seemed to be the limit for the Sophomores and afterwards they seemed to die.

During the remainder of the college year, until March 18th, the Freshmen had everything their own way. They looked upon their so-called superiors with contempt and went on "biz" whenever the occasion permitted and sometimes when it did not permit, a privilege never allowed Freshmen before in Bethany. There was no opposition whatever and some of the more inquisitive inquired as to whether the college could boast of a Sophomore class.

"After the storm a calm." The reverse of this was true however, for the Freshmen, for after a long calm lasting almost all winter the storm came, and it was no mild one let me tell you.

On the night of March 10th, Pres. Hueston and some of his classmates were busy informing the class that the flag would be raised the following morning and the annual Class Scrap would be fought. The Sophs became aware of the movement and rallied their forces only to have a few short battles.

The morning of March 18th dawned bright, clear and cold. During Chapel services the flag was placed in the top of the large sycamore tree at the foot of the Campus just in front of the College. The Sophomores, taking advantage of the cold, tried the freezing process and allowed the brave band of fifty to shiver until 1 p. m. They in the meantime, "being clothed and fed" and having rallied all the Sophs, Juniors and a few Preps, appeared at the top of the knoll all ready for the attack.

The fight was long and fierce, yet the cold and half starved band of Freshmen could not hold out against a much larger number of well fed enemies so they were finally conquered.

But defeat is not a sign of weakness. The fact that Napoleon met his Waterloo is no sign that he was unable to lead an army, so we the class of 1912 stand strong in the faith that we may sometime conquer or die.

History

The Neotrophian Society was established in 1841. Feeling literary life a necessary adjunct to college work, the students of Bethany met on Nov. 5, 1841, and organized the first literary society in Bethany College. Several names were proposed but it was decided to name the literary association Neotrophian. Immediately a committee was appointed to draft a constitution and draw up rules and regulations. The first three sections of Article I. of the N. L. S. constitution read:

Sec. 1. This association shall be known as the Neotrophian Literary Society.

Sec. 2. The motto of this society shall be "Quacrimus Verum."

Sec. 3. The Bible shall be recognized as our guide.

On March 16, 1849, the Neotrophian Society was incorporated by the General Assembly of Virginia. Twice in her history has N. L. S. suffered loss by fire. In 1857, when the College was burned to the ground the society library, consisting of about twelve hundred volumes, was lost. But the loss stimulated her friends and the old library was replaced by a larger and better one. When the new college building was completed, N. L. S. was given a finely fitted hall in the northern end. But when this was burned in 1879, again her library and valuable furnishings were destroyed. In 1880, N. L. S. moved to her present quarters.

Many of Bethany's best men have been Neotrophians. Such men as J. W. McCarvey, J. R. Lamar, H. S. Lobengier, Champ Clark, leader of minority in the House of Representatives, ex-Governor Odell of New York, B. C. Hegeman, A. R. Milligan, M. M. Cochran, G. H. Anderson, Trustee of Bethany College, G. T. Oliver, another trustee, O. Schmeidel, E. O. Lovett, and Thomas W. Phillips, have gone out and made old Bethany famous by their standing in the world.

For the past few years N. L. S. has led in the number of graduates sent out from this institution. This year nine men go out. The nearest to this is six from one of the other societies. May her work go on as long as Bethany stands.

History

The bright, earnest student, on coming to Bethany College, unconsciously attracted, as worth is by worth, walks up the steps at the main entrance, turns to his left on the corridor and enters the second door, climbs a flight of stairs and finds himself at the door of A. L. I. hall. Entering, he sees a large attractive room beautifully decorated in dark green, relieved by harmonizing lighter colors. Some fine old pictures add their charm; heavy damask curtains shade their quaint narrow windows; a bust of Garfield holds a place on the rostrum. The newcomers fine sensibilities respond to the beauty and classic elegance, and a delicate intuition tells one that in this hall he will meet with kindred upward, striving spirits, and feel a warming glow that will arouse the latent power within him.

He is in the hall of a literary society organized more than three score years ago, and whose children have gone out well equipped for many posts of service, honor, and many a righteous battle.

Since her organization in 1841, twice destructive fires have destroyed her hall and valuable library.

In her early years she denied her fostering care to all but men; but realizing that men and women accomplish more and reach a higher level when left as God had placed them, she opened her motherly arms to women as well as men.

Proud of her past, A. L. I. is wide awake and working in the present and toils, knowing, surely, that coming years must still bring a bounding joy. For the light that descends from heaven, kindles in her children's hearts an undying fire, that shall shine as beacon lights on many a high hill of a world yet dark, teaching men to know and love the right.

HISTORY

On March 29, 1853, there was born to Bethany College a Child of Destiny. On that date the State of Virginia, which then included West Virginia, through its legislature formally recognized the legal existence of the Adelpkian Literary Society by issuing to it a charter. It has been a precocious child-oll, yet ever young, and enjoys perpetual youth through a strong infusion of life each year from many states and countries. Its fifty-six years of history have reflected special glory upon Bethany College, for its membership has included most of the prominent ministers through whom the college enjoys an imperishable fame.

For many years its work was special—the ministerial students of the A. L. I. and N. L. S. being included in its membership. Only in recent years have ladies been admitted. The "preacher's society" as it was wont to be called finally came to recognize the universal importance of the truth that it is not well for a man to be alone, even in a literary society.

Since the society concluded to embrace the ladies, the results have been most gratifying and success has been unquestioned. We feel a pardonable pride when we look back over our history and see such names as J. E. Pounds, W. J. Wright, W. R. Warren, Earle Willey, R. B. Bagby, Charles Darsie, A. McLean, E. V. Zollars, W. H. Woolery, C. A. Kleeberger, Nathan Cramblet, P. Y. Pendleton, Prof. E. Lee Perry, our present professor of Latin, Prof. Wynne, of Hebrew, and E. D. Power, besides a host of names which space forbids to mention. They have wrought mightily for God and it is a high privilege to continue their illustrious work. Let each Adelpkian strive to reach the high idea placed before him.

COLLEGIAN CONTEST BANNER

For many years the Bethany Collegian was far from up to the standard of a good college paper and it seemed that no improvement or change could be made in it from year to year. In many cases the editors were not interested in the Collegian and did not attempt its improvement, but more often it was the fault of the students who could not be induced to write for it. They could not be blamed to a great extent, for the paper was inferior and no inducement was offered for their articles. The manager and editors of 1906-'07 were the first to awaken to a realization that the students were willing and what they needed was some incentive to spur them on to literary efforts.

The Collegian Contest Banner was at this time brought forward, having been donated by Geo. T. Oliver and Mrs. Main. The idea sprang from the fertile brain of the manager and has proved itself a blessing to the Bethany Collegian. The Banner was held in the hands of the editorial staff during the first year and the three societies contested for it, making as many points as possible each month, which were counted to their credit and announced in each issue. The contest grew very exciting and the Collegian was a far better paper than it had been in its history. Thus the advent of the Collegian Contest Banner has brought a new era in our college paper, and it is to be hoped that the succeeding editors, during years to come, will hold as high the standard of excellence which our Collegian holds at the present time.

"Happy is the woman that findeth wisdom and the woman that getteth understanding. It is more precious than rubies and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared with it."

What we girls are here at college for is not to obtain wisdom and understanding of material things only, but to develop womanhood of the highest type, that we may go out into the world and make it better. This is what we strive after in our Christian Association.

During the past year the work has been very successful. Under the able leadership of our president the work was carefully planned and each girl made to feel her own individual responsibility.

A devotional meeting is held every Wednesday evening and a fifteen-minute prayer service every morning before breakfast. In these meetings the girls come together all on an equal and are helped and strengthened for their work. A Bible class meets every other Sunday afternoon for the study of the Bible. Its work has been found very profitable and successful. Once a month a joint meeting of the Y. W. and Y. M. is planned and together we have most helpful meetings, then, also a mission-study class meets once a week for its separate work.

The association has raised money for the state work and responds cheerfully whenever a call comes for money.

The plan of the Y. W. C. A. is to bring the girls into closer touch with Christ and with each other. When new girls come into our midst we aim to welcome them in our girlish way and thus drive away homesickness. With our motto ever before us we are pushing forward hoping to do great things for our Master.

NO organization promises more to its members than the Young Men's Christian Association. Its well known object is to build up men physically, mentally and morally. In college there is not so much need for the Young Men's Christian Association to look after the physical development of its members as the athletics of the College attend to this. In his necessary studies the college man gets sufficient mental development. It remains for the College Y. M. C. A. to furnish the food and occasion for spiritual growth.

The work at Bethany is being successfully conducted, we feel, along this line. In the midst of the many, duties and attractions of college life which tend to distract from religious work, our Y. M. C. A. meetings have been seasons of great interest and benefit. Many young men say that they receive more help from these meetings than they do from the preaching service or prayer-meeting of the church. It is not difficult to understand how this is when we remember that in the Y. M. C. A. meetings the "fellows" have opportunity to talk heart to heart with each other, and that personal difficulties are dealt with.

The Association encourages daily devotional exercises among the students. During the past year a body of the boys of the dormitory formed a devotional club. They meet once a week and exhort each other to greater consecration. Under the auspices of the Association a Mission Study Class is conducted which is a source of great profit and inspiration.

The greatest problem that confronts the Y. M. C. A. at Bethany is how to arouse and maintain interest in the work among a greater proportion of the "fellows." Although this problem has not been solved to our satisfaction, we feel encouraged in our work and aim to make the present year the best in the history of the College.

THIS organization was effected on February 14th, 1906, during a visit of Mr. C. B. Fitus, of China, who assisted in the organization.

The purpose of the Band expressed in its charter is to study matters pertaining to foreign missions, to aid spiritual and intellectual growth, to foster a missionary spirit among the students and to encourage others to become volunteers for foreign missionary work. These purposes have been constantly kept in mind by the members. During the present year five new members have expressed their intention of preparing to become missionaries. The present membership of the Band is twenty. Besides meeting every week for study and devotion it has conducted very successful missionary rallies at Colliers, West Liberty, Bellaire, Steubenville, Martins Ferry, Morristown, and Bethesda.

The society took as its motto Christ's last command: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." It sends forth an urgent call to those who want to make their lives count for the most, to those who desire to build without using another man's foundation, to all whose desire is to have Jesus Christ supreme in the lives of all men for whom he died, that they consider earnestly the giving of their lives to missionary work.

PROFESSOR WORKMAN'S BIBLE CLASS.

Y. M. C. A. Lecture Course

The lecture course has justly attained a prominent place among the many activities of our college life. We can not over-estimate the influence of a single sentence, often falling from the lips of a man of broad experience and culture, has had upon an individual in spurring him on to greater endeavor. The printed word has stimulated the thought of man but more often it is left to the orator to stir that man to action.

Through a committee selected by the Y. M. C. A. a series of lectures and entertainments have been secured for the purpose of bringing the world to us, as it were, with its manifold problems which present themselves for solution. Thus for a time the text-book finds a resting place on the shelf and our vision and so our sympathies and appreciations extend beyond the little horizon which often limits our value to society. The committee has expended the entire receipts and thus a very credible series was presented in the following numbers:

Charles Amherst Ott	George A. McNutt
Oriole Concert Company	Dr. Oscar Haywood
Orphemium Company	Hal Merton
Byron W. King.

ATHLETICS

ATHLETICS OF BETHANY

THE purpose of a college training is to better prepare us for life's work. The training must increase our capacity for work. A college best adapted to give this training must work on the principle that "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Dr. R. W. Dale once said, "The object of all recreation is to increase our capacity for work, to keep the blood pure and the brain bright and the temper kindly and sweet."

Athletics is a recreation and every college that develops highest manhood in her students approves of pure athletics. We are glad that Bethany has done this. With her gymnasium and her spacious grounds, every student has an opportunity to obtain the much needed exercise, after several hours of stiff study.

For a few years past, the athletics of Bethany have been under the supervision of an Athletic Board. This board consists of three members of the faculty and three students representing the student body. The managers of the different teams are nominated by the student body and are then passed upon by the Athletic Board. If the nominees are considered worthy and suited to the office for which they were nominated, they are appointed by the Board.

This method has been practiced at Bethany for several years and has proved very successful. In this way the best men can be secured for the several offices.

In the past Bethany has been very fortunate in securing good men for the teams. She has been able to compete with colleges much larger than herself.

Bethany is represented in athletic circles in all recognized games. Our Football has been of the highest class. Fairness in their dealings with other teams has been characteristic of the boys, and it has won for them many friends. Although our team this year was not as heavy as the one the year previous, they made a very good record, losing only two games out of the eight played.

Our Basket-ball also did good work. One great hindrance to our success in Basket-ball is that we have such poor accommodations for the spectators. For this reason most of the best games must be played away from home. No team can do as well on a strange floor as they can on their home floor. Despite all this our boys did well and we are proud of them.

Along Base-ball lines for this year we are yet in the dark. Since the Bethanian goes to press before the season opens we can do no more than hope for good things. From the appearance of the boys we can prophesy great victories. They made a good showing in their practice work and we have every reason to look forward to a successful year.

Our manager, Mr. Cotton, has secured a good schedule and we expect to win our share of the games. We wish success to the wearers of the "B."

OUR COACH

W. B. YANCEY.

THE South has always claimed that she produces real gentlemen, and in the case of Yance, as we know him, she can claim no exception to the rule. Not only may he be classed as gentleman and a scholar, but also as an athlete from start to finish. When it comes to athletics he is one whom we do not see every day. It is on the gridiron that his ability as an athlete becomes evident. He always plays the game from start to finish; and the teams turned out under his leadership, show his ability as a coach. The teams put out under his coaching are ones which Old Bethany well may be proud of. And foot-ball is not the only game in which he took a prominent place; for he also took a leading part in base-ball and basket-ball. His ability in track work was very evident to those who witnessed last field-day. In short, it was "a walk away." We all regret that "Yanceum" could not remain till the end of school; but having fair promise of his return in the spring, we await that time with eagerness.

EUGENE CURTIS

Base Ball Coach

Eugene Curtis, who had charge of the baseball candidates the first month of the present season, was of great assistance in developing this year's Varsity.

Although greatly handicapped by the bad weather and the shortness of his stay, on account of his having to report to the East Liverpool club of the O. and P. league, he was of inestimable service to all the candidates in starting them right, by teaching them baseball on a scientific basis.

"Oude" has had a varied career in professional baseball. His first professional playing was with Zanesville about 1900, and since then he has been with most every league of any importance in the country, including an engagement with the Pittsburg Nationals, who purchased him from the Wheeling club of the Central league, during the middle of the season.

Surely a man of his experience and reputation should make an ideal coach for any college team, and we certainly count ourselves lucky to be able to have the services of such an able coach.

MISCELLANEOUS

VALEDICTORY

BY M. EOLA SMITH '08

The philosopher Leibnitz has left us an ideal theory of the creation of the universe. In the beginning and at the head of all stands God, the Creator, the sublime, soul-like reality who people His world with beings like to Himself, emanating from His mind as thoughts flow from the mind of man. There are many individuals in existence simply because God regards all aspects of the universe in all possible manners and the result of each view as seen from a different position is a creation differing in some respect from every other.

Each individual must forever remain separate and distinct, for there is no direct communication between God's creations: they touch each other only through the mind of God. Being thus isolated, standing alone and unapproachable in the throng of its fellow beings, each individual learns of the external world by its own inner experiences. The Creator designed its soul as the representative of the universe, and though the real world is wholly inaccessible, yet the so-called world is merely the involuntary projection of what takes place within itself, the reproduction in miniature of what takes place on the large scale in the macrocosm.

Since all God's created life is independent of its surroundings, God has pre-ordained a universal harmony existent among its multitudinous forms which brings about the unity and completeness of His world.

Such, in essence, is His theory. Happily it is not our province to put forth a critique of its exaggerations and shortcomings, to defend or to deny His right to establish such a universe of individuals with such a God at their head, or to prove or disprove that fatalism lies in the last analysis of His doctrine. It is enough to say, with Alford, of the teaching of any great man: "Truth does not consist of minute accuracy of detail, but in conveying right impression; and there are vague ways of speaking that are truer than strict facts would be. When the Psalmist said, 'Rivers of water run down mine eyes because men keep not the law,' he did not state the fact, but he stated a truth deeper than fact, and truer." In this light we seek to build on the philosopher's theory.

Emerson has said, "Every great man is a unique." The Scipionism of Scipio is precisely that part which he could not borrow. We say today every man is a unique. What he has aggregated out of his own thought and action is his own peculiar charm, and surprises and delights us when it is produced. When the limitless and inexhaustible variety of Nature's form and shades is noted our minds are appalled at the resourcefulness of God. But even more wonderful is the boundless scope of individuality among his rational creation. Phrenologists find no two heads alike externally; psychologists have discovered no two minds acting exactly the same under similar excitations; no man is the counterpart of his fellow. Herein lies a secret of growth: What one man has left undone, another has been peculiarly fitted to accomplish and has carried on to perfection; what one nation has failed to realize in the rush and struggle for existence among rival powers, another has grasped easily and has come rapidly to the forefront of civic affairs. Human experience from the dawn of time to the dawn of eternity, has been and will be but the rhythmic repetition of this principle:

“Countless the various species of mankind;
Countless the shades that separate mind from mind,
No general object of desire is known;
Each has his will and each pursues his own.”

If it were not for individuality, if each generation of men walked in the footsteps of their fathers, imitating with parrot-like exactitude, their words and customs, where would be our boasted superiority in civilization and enlightenment? But this hypothesis is absurd, for as some one has said: “Very rarely do we find a literal repetition of what is offered. Even from the beginning there is a tendency to depart a little from the copy—to adopt it somewhat to the special circumstances and tastes of the individual; so that the replica always has a turn in it that the original did not have.”

Thus has the race advanced, not by section nor by platoons, nor in solid phalanxes, but here and there in the course of ages, an individual has stood out on the horizon of life and cast his shadow over the world.

It is a wonderful fact that the human mind, the mind of a single individual who is such an infinitesimal part of the created universe, should have within itself the power of grasping such a multitude of things in such magnitude of proportion. As the crystal Alpine lake reaches up its bright face to enfold in its bosom great expanses of sky, seemingly bottomless as we stand on its shore and gaze down, down as far beneath as the blue arches above, seemingly stretching as far to east and west, north and south as the immeasurable heavens themselves, so the mind of man mirrors the world. All the divine melodies and ecstasies of centuries may surge through one heart, and the poet is born; all the grace and beauty of material things may enthrall one man's soul, and the sculptor carves or the architect builds a monument to his own genius; all the shades and tones and forms and expressions may be wrapped in one intellect and the unfolding displays the artist; one life may epitomize the gleanings of eons.

God's world is not a riddle to be solved only by those of superior intellectual ability, neither can one enter its doorways of knowledge by saying, “Open, Sesame!” God's truths are profound, yet any earnest soul may acquire unto them. Every human life has the power of absorbing within itself in miniature reproduction, the broad life of the world. Man, as evolved by the ages, is the highest manifestation in the temporal process of growing more and more like the eternal. As some one has said, “It was as though in man realizing his destiny through self activity, the Absolute beheld himself reflected. The Absolute is, the finite becomes.”

Yet, great as is the individual, important as are his knowledge, sympathy and virtue to the world's progress, an omniscient God has planned a world on such a vast scale that individuals may fall as the leaves of autumn and the universal completeness is still intact. Each life is needed in its day and generation, yet when it succumbs to its mortality, another arises to take its place. The present, the past—that ponderous accumulation of present moments steadily and relentlessly slipping by in the wake of time, and the future—present moments yet to come from the lap of infinity, all must owe their records not only to men, but to mankind as well. The purposes of God must prevail though private opinion be scattered to the four winds of heaven and sunk in the boundless deep.

As in the development of the human life the stature of the child must yield place to that of the man, and infantile conceptions develop into mature thoughts, gliding imperceptively from stage to stage of growth, tissues and cells ever being worn out, cast aside and replaced by the new and strong, never in a state of rest but continually building, yet not in disorderly confusion of man's workmanship, but quietly preserving the unity of the whole from the beginning of the life to its close, so in the development of God's universe the individual life fulfills its mission, is snuffed out and replaced, the curtain rises on a new scene and the play of life goes on unmarred, uninterrupted, growing steadily toward the climax which God himself has planned.

The Pantheist says: All is God. Should he not rather say: All is God's? God is not a part of the world, but the world, this great universe with its millions of peoples, its planets, satellites, suns and stars, is all in God and a part of His vast dominion. Even before life appeared, while the earth was without form and void, the great plan of the world was beginning to be unfolded and from the beginning to the present has been growing and developing as God works in His own mysterious way His wonders to perform. We are a part of God whether we will or not and are used by Him to work out the ultimate destiny of the world. As Robert Hall has beautifully said: "The wheels of nature are not made to roll backward; everything presses on toward eternity: from the birth of time an impetuous current has set in which bears all the sons of men toward that interminable ocean. Meanwhile heaven is attracting to itself whatever is congenial to its nature, is enriching itself by the spoils of earth, and collecting within its capacious bosom whatever is pure, permanent and divine."

The course of events has brought about the close of another collegiate year of Bethany College, another class pauses for a moment on its stage before it is pushed aside by its successor. We, the class of nineteen eight, have passed a few brief but portentous years here under the shadow of these walls whence have been said and done wonderful things, years as full of omens and signs as ever those of Grecian days, coming not from a blind interpretation of dead sacrifices offered to health gods, but from living voluntary sacrifices made to the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, years when as our minds advanced under the brightening lead of Education, the hand of God appeared now to restrain, now to urge, now to soothe, until we stand today, as we are, before you.

O, classmates, this is an enviable day in our lives: our past college life, the dear, dead past with all its sorrows and joys, its disappointments and its exhilarating triumphs, its play and its freedom, for it has had much of all these, is still so vividly before our eyes that we do not realize it is gone; the future, alluring and untried, stretches invitingly ahead and calls us to come and see. How limitless are our possibilities if we swing in line to the rhythmic beat of pulse of life, the indicator of the heart of God, how wide our scope and bright our view if our lives harmonize with God, if we recognize that we as a part of the world are in Him and circumscribed by Him, that there are certain fixed boundries beyond which we cannot go without loss and destruction to ourselves and others.

But before we leave today, e'er we lay aside the cap and gown for the dust-stained garment of toil, let us pause for a brief time on this first plateau on the mountainous way of life, this Commencement of a new ascent, let us pause here and pay our respect to those who have guided and led us when our feet would have stumbled and fallen alone. To the President and Faculty we pay the loftiest tribute our thoughts can dictate. Many times we have misunderstood your purposes and subjected you to our criticisms. Only years of experience can show us your value, your deep interest in our welfare, your patience and forbearance with our egoism. We leave you with regret and may it be our highest aim to be to others what you have been to us.

The hour has come when the class of nineteen eight must yield place to those who have already laid their hands on the coveted cap and gown. We do not bid you good-bye in the world's careless meaning of the term, but from the depths of our hearts, to faculty, fellow classmates, friends, and all, we say, "God be with you."

BETHANY DAILIES

The Last Leaf

(With sincere apologies to that more classical but hardly more pathetic figure, the "Last Leaf" of Oliver Wendell Holmes).

I can see him as he goes
With his loosely flapping clothes
Thin from wear.
And his gaunt, unbarbered chin,
With a melancholy grin
Frozen there.

As a Freshman he could run,
There were races that he won.
I've been told,
Then his eyes were joyous blue,
And his hair was joyous, too—
Reddish gold.

Now his ruddy hair is thin,
And his cheeks are shrunk in
Gaunt and grey.
And the ashen shadows run
Where the lurking smile of fun
used to play.

He hobbles through the hall,
And his eyes gaze past us all,
Bleared and dim.
But he hugs his Lotze fast,
And the voices of the past
Speak to him.

It is said he used to go
Out for walks, full long ago,
Not alone.
But his courting days are past,
For he settled down at last
Just to bone.

It may be it is a sin
For me to sit and grin
At him here;
But to leave all joy behind
For an unremittent grind
Seems so queer.

And if I should live to be
A senior such as he,
Shrunk and dry,
Let them look at me and smile
Let them laugh as I have, while
I go by.

ORATORY DEPARTMENT

The Question

To cram or not to cram—that is the question,
Whether 'tis better to go home
With "cons" and "flunks,"
Or to kill yourself—the night before exams.
And then not get one "pass."
To sit up and to cram—
No more and, by that cramming say we end
The "callings" and sarcastic jibes—
And get in good with Profs. 'Tis a consummation
Devotedly to be wished. To study and to cram,
And by our cramming lose,
Much sleep and still flunk out?
Aye, there's the rub.

Appreciation—The Bethany Hack

STRANGE things will occur in the course of five or six thousand years. Some strange things occur in less time than that. Some occur in a minute, or sixty seconds. Some, in years.

In this article I want to write about something strange, and if you will give me your attention for five or six hours, I shall perform the obnoxious task.

I want to write about the Bethany hack. Is that strange? It is strange to the new students, and it is chiefly for their benefit that I am writing. I am writing, also, to make the blood boil in those students who have been here from one to a dozen years.

Three hundred and sixty-five and one-fourth days ago, there was no street car line coming from Wellsburg to Bethany. We had hacks. If any new student does not understand that term, let him ask an old one. But these hacks have been relegated to oblivion by this thing called a street car. We oppose this street car, and believe in the revival of the Bethany hack. A decent respect for the opinions of mankind require that we declare the causes which impel us to the opposition.

First, the stupendous price charged by the hack was a decided advantage. Everyone, from Z. F. Sweeney down to a junior prep in Bethany, had to pay that price. I say it was an advantage. Does any one want something for nothing? A man should pay for what he gets. He does not appreciate it if he does not. Shakespeare says, "More sharper than a serpent's tooth is vile ingratitude." No one can be grateful unless he appreciates, and no one can appreciate what he does not pay for, and that enough to feel it. If Shakespeare was here, he would be opposed to this trolley line, and strongly in favor of reviving the Bethany hack.

Second, social advantages. No one can appreciate the social advantages of the Bethany hack who has not ridden in one. A hack is filled with students, they are discussing questions of momentous importance to the state, the nation, and the world—how Prof. Bourne squelches the unprepared student; how Prof. McEvoy makes his "little speech" twice a year; how Prof. Johnson tries to go on biz— or rather, tries to stay on; how the president discovers biz couples on the corridor, and causes them, in less time than it takes to tell it, to become minus quantities; how the juniors play jokes on the seniors—these, and many other questions of great importance, they discuss, besides telling jokes and evolving yarns and witticisms to the edification of all. These advantages cannot be had on the street car. Therefore, we strenuously oppose it, and just as strenuously advocate the return of the Bethany hack.

Third, we are in favor of the hack because of its historicity. Think of the great men that have ridden on the hack. There have been W. J. Wright, A. McClean, J. W. McGarvey, A. C. Pendleton, A. Campbell, and Hess Willard. Is historical significance worth nothing? Ought not everyone to be proud to travel as these great men? This street car obliterates all historical association. Not only this, but great men's trunks have been brought to Bethany on the hack. It ought to be an inconceivable pleasure to have one's trunk conveyed to Bethany as great men have had theirs conveyed. But this inestimable privilege is gone, now they must be brought out on a street car.

We declare it is absurd, unkind, offensive, ungrateful, preposterous and un-patriotic. We, therefore, enter our protest against this new order of things, and if all others will do the same, we pledge at least one minute a year to abolishing by demolishing the street car line, and reinstating the Bethany hack.

ART DEPARTMENT.

For Sale

TWO Junior and Two Senior Orations.

They have been used but are not damaged in the least. They speak for themselves. The subject of lexicography and exegetic immorgerousness are admirably treated. Edations and aurred cosmography abound.

They are, moreover grandiloquent in their immarcessibly loquacious verbosity and intoxicating in their polysyllabic etomological quintessence.

My oration on "Antidisestablismentarinism " is especially fine.

WHAT IS WRONG WITH THE COLLEGE

"Nothing," says the President.
"Not enough work," laments the Prof.
"Not enough interest taken in Oratory," says Prof. Pulse.
"Not enough money," says Prof. McEvoy.
"Too much work," shouts the student.
"Too many orations," say the Seniors.
"No smoking," rejoins the Cigaret Fiend.
"Too much biz," says Pryor.
"Too much potitics," says the Athletic Board.
"Biz Rules too strict," say the Bizites.
"Not like my High School," say the Freshmen.
"Everything is wrong," howls the Pessimist.

BETHANY COLLEGE—SHOWING ATHLETIC FIELD

Bethany

Land where the Campbells trod,
 Land of our father's God,
 We, on this holy sod
 Offer our praise!

Not here the scorner's seat—
 Not hear do scoffers meet—
 Only our reverent feet
 Walk o'er thy ways!

Sacred for memory—
 Sacred for things to be—
 Come we on bended knee
 Voices to raise!

Fairest of mothers dear—
 College without a peer—
 Bethany have no fear
 For future days!

A Few Foolish Questions Heard Around College

Dale Hughes to Hanna, after the Junior-Senior reception—"How many Parlors are there in Phillips Hall?"

Tom Moore to Grable—"To what church does Prof. Taylor belong?"

Dr. Poland to Wright—"Do we have an Athletic Field?"

Mozena, looking at Alexander Campbell's Bust in chapel—"Why do they have Napoleon's bust on the rostrum?"

Wallace, after spending six months in College—"Who is President of this College?"

Hoon, to a member of the Athletic Board—"How many Football games do we have this spring?"

Hood, to Willard—"Who teaches Chemistry, Prof. Mahaffey or Prof. Bourne?"

Prof. (?) Wright, to Dr. Poland—"Do you think it proper to speak to a student or just limit it to members of the Faculty?"

Carpenter, to Bruns—"Is Harry Campbell a son or brother of Alexander Campbell?"

Carter—"Do you really think I look like Prof. Taylor?"

Pryor, to his girl—"When does the Glee Club play its first game?"

Riggs, to Coach Yancey—"Do they play Hermeneutics in the Gym., or on the athletic field?"

Mark Hall, talking to Miss Pulse—"Is the Bethanian a Religious Organization or a disease?"

Dan Stuber, to Pres. C.—"Where is the Homiletics Laboratory?"

Bowers, in the Science Department—"How can you teach Zoology here when you don't have even a Zoo?"

Fox—"Is Workman the Science Professor's real name or is that his motto?"

McMullen, to McLeod—"Do you need a man to play the Bass in the Volunteer Mission Band?"

Ritter's first day in College—"I am surprised to see the boys here. I thought this was a Seminary."

Hamilton, to Charles Teter—"Why do they call Bethany a College of Liberal Arts when Prof. Hedges is the only Artist on the Faculty?"

Ferguson (shaking hands with the President after a years' absence)—"You graduated last year, did you not?"

OLD BETHANY.

My Father sent me to Old Bethany,
And resolved that I should be a man.
And so I settled down,
In that quiet little town,
On the banks of the Old Buffalo.

On the banks of the Old Buffalo, my boys,
Where Old Bethany evermore shall stand,
For has she not stood
Since the time of the flood,
On the banks of the Old Buffalo.

As Fresh they used me rather roughly,
But I the fearful gauntlet ran:
Oh, they shook me so about
That they turned me inside out,
On the banks of the Old Buffalo.

We passed through all these trials nobly,
And then as Sophs our turn began,
Oh, we hazed the poor Fresh so
That they longed for Heaven I know,
On the banks of the Old Buffalo.

And then I made my social entree,
And joined in many a social band,
And by my cunning art
Stole many a maiden's heart,
On the banks of the Old Buffalo.

At last we joined the Senior circle,
And spread our fame o'er all the land,
While we crowned our goblets high
With the hopes of "by and by,"
On the banks of the Old Buffalo.

Then sing aloud for Alma Mater,
The Green and White be in the van;
For with her motto high
Bethany's name shall never die,
On the banks of the Old Buffalo.

Will You Tell Me?

Who said "There is only one life to live?"
Who told Wineke he could sing?
Who cut Campbell's hair?
Who said he had never heard an Oration in Bethany College?
Who said Mr. Corn was an orator?
Who said it was the unanimous decision of the Faculty?
Why the Faculty made Mr. Pickle make nine credits in one term?
Who supports Athletics?
Who buys boxes at the box-social?
Who stole the ice cream at the Valentine Party?
Who carried the chairs from Chapel Hall?
Who does not loaf in Teter's room?
Who smeared green paint in Chapel on March 17th?
If we will ever be rid of knockers?
Who robbed the book-store?
Why all flunkers are knockers?
Why the class fight did not stop when Prof. Taylor requested it?
How wide is Mozena's yellow streak?
Why all the "Preps" want to fight with the Sophomores?
Where is the best place to buy Senior Orations?
Who said "In this age of Bread and Meat men think in Money?"
Why some one never hazed Wineke?
Who told Bruns he was a peace-maker?
Who said this Annual was no good?
Who looks like Miss J——'s brother this year?
Who said "In the beginning all was chaos?"
Why we can't have exemption grades?
When are they going to enlarge the Parlor at Phillips Hall to accommodate the Monday afternoon callers?
Who says "It is just as e-a-s-y?"
Why we never hear "historic" mentioned any more?

A Student's Dream

ONE eve as I strolled on the Corridor
While the night wind was blowing warm;
I felt a light tap on my shoulder,
Then a sudden jerk at my arm.

I turned and beheld a strange phantom.
Who sternly said unto me,
"Come and see dear old Bethany College,
As dear old Bethany College might be"

I stood for a moment in terror,
Gazing at him by my side;
But finally accepted his proffer
For him to act as my guide.

We strolled to the end of the corridor
And viewed the old college wall;
The bricks and mortar were perfect,
There was no sign that it ever would fall.

We entered the book store shortly,
But my guide and I seemed to be lost;
When the man just over the counter,
Said they now sold text books at cost.

I looked at my guide in amazement
And he softly whispered to me:
"This is dear old Bethany College,
As dear old Bethany College might be."

We retraced our steps on the corridor,
And stood on the elevator car;
And as we ascended to chapel
He allowed me to smoke my cigar.

The chapel was warmed by steam heat,
Great paintings adorned every wall;
Every student was in his position,
There was no longer need for roll call.

I looked at my guide much bewildered,
But he quietly whispered to me:
"This is dear old Bethany College,
As dear old Bethany College might be."

Together we visited each class room
Heard senior and freshman recite;
But no freshman sat with the seniors
They were classified justly and right

We were informed of a change in the schedule
That it was permanent thru and thru;
That the professors and students before hand,
Knew exactly what was to do.

I looked at my guide in amazement
And he whispered softly to me:
"This is dear old Bethany College,
As dear old Bethany College might be "

"Come! come! the Museum," my guide said,
"We must visit before 'tis too late;
And see the Prof. in charge there,
Who keeps everything in good shape."

And will you believe me, dear reader,
The place was as clean as could be;
Every specimen in case wall or window,
Was shown to my guide and to me.

The Prof. in charge said politely,
"This collection is the best in the land,
To which the students have access,
Whenever the occasion demands."

We strolled to the science department,
There professors had charge of this work;
Each student had his own lab desk,
There was no thought of parasite or shirk.

With tears of rejoicing they told me
For lab work they need pay no fee;
My guide said—"Behold dear old Bethany College,
As dear old Bethany College might be "

We entered the library building
As the clock in the tower struck ten,
Both reading rooms were in service,
Filled with college women and men.

The latest books were in evidence
The Antediluvians had passed;
The library was open at all hours,
The students' wish accorded at last.

I turned to address my conductor,
But no where was he to be seen;
I realized then very plainly,
That my journey had been but a dream.

The dear old College was standing,
Was standing for me and for you;
No change had been wrought while in dreamland,
But we only wish it were true.

The Bygone Year

Farewell to the days of the bygone year,
Farewell to them now they're done,
I think of their hours with a smile and tear,
I grieve, for so swift they're done.

Full rare were the joys of those bygone days,
Right true were the friends they brought,
I give to the full of my heart's best praise
For these, and the lessons taught.

Glad year of the past with thy vict'ries won,
Glad times which shall come no more,
Full well for the right has thy work been done,
Thy toil to increase my store.

And now as I turn with a sincere heart,
Stretch forth to the days to be,
May I in my place act well my part,
Help'd on by the good from thee.

The Sophomore-Flag Rush

MANY are the joys of college life, but none are looked forward to with greater expectation or remembered with a more vivid recollection, than the annual class fight between the Sophomores and Freshmen. The fight this year was no exception to the rule; everyone was interested—from the Junior Prep. to the dignified Senior, and all showed their interest by assembling on the campus to see the mighty conflict, and to cheer their respective sides to victory.

The Freshmen leaders had planned and prepared for the fight during the night, in the hope that they could deceive the Sophomores, but through a blunder the plot was exposed and the Sophs and Juniors were aroused. During the night both sides tied up a number of men and caused a great deal of trouble and noise, but did not do anything desperate until the next morning at eight o'clock, when the Freshmen placed their flag in the old Sycamore tree, and challenged the Sophs to take it down.

The challenge, however, went unheeded until after dinner, when the first rush was made. Meanwhile the Freshmen were forced to remain in the cold and to miss their dinner, but Prof. Stewart and Freshmen girls came to their rescue with baskets of sandwiches and buckets of hot coffee, and so no one actually starved.

Scarcely had the meal been finished when the Sophs charged down the hill and started the fight. Soon the well organized bands of Freshmen, Sophomores and Juniors were a seething mass of humanity, kicking, striking and yelling for victory, each confident of ultimate success. But the organization and well-laid plans of the Sophomores were too much for the Freshmen, who, one by one, in spite of their valiant defense, were tied and carried away, till none remained to guard the tree, and the glorious flag fell into the hands of the enemy.

The Freshmen, as usual, made a great mistake in leaving the tree, for as soon as they left they were captured and tied, then carried to the gymnasium. Here they were confined until the fight was over, but not without much trouble, for again and again they would get loose and make a desperate attempt to escape. Just as the contest closed a dozen or more Freshmen did succeed in getting away, and came rushing to the rescue only to be told that the "battle had been fought and the victory won."

What the result would have been if these men had arrived sooner is not known, but it is quite evident, they would have made things interesting and delayed the capture of the flag. Now that the fight is over and the Freshmen Class defeated, they are not discouraged, but are looking forward to the time when they will defeat the Freshies of 1910.

The Chapel Pews

As we went to chapel on election day
 We heard the happy news
 That some one had taken the chairs away
 And we tried our best, but none dared say
 Who had stolen the chapel pews.

All were happy, all were bright,
 For the students would get their dues,
 And would loaf till very late that night
 Counting the ballots by the pale moonlight
 For the chapel was empty of pews.

We laughed and grinned and all knew why
 No smoke came from the chimney flues,
 And when we heard the old clock ring
 We went to chapel for the fun of the thing,
 For we knew it was empty of pews.

Roll was called, but no song was sung;
 The teachers' faces wore many hues
 And it began to look like we were stung
 When the President said from a mighty lung
 He knew who had stolen the pews.

He said that all classes would recite
 That the Profs. would no one excuse
 And we found ourselves in a pretty plight,
 For the faculty said that it wasn't right
 To empty the chapel of pews.

So with sighs and groans to class we went,
 For no one dared refuse;
 Many stood up till their legs were bent,
 And all were willing to repent
 For stealing the chapel pews.

And instead of a day of reclining
 And the fun that elections infuse,
 All day we were problems defining
 And found that our brains were declining
 For stealing the chapel pews.

But the teachers all had a seat,
 While the students wore out their shoes,
 So we very soon saw our defeat
 And found that ourselves we had beat
 By stealing the chapel pews.

From the top of the hill to the Buffalo's shore
 There's nothing we'll even abuse,
 But always honor and even adore
 Laws that were made in the days of yore
 So here's to the chapel pews.

How the Average Student Reads the Bethanian

SPENDS the first five minutes looking for his picture. The next five minutes are spent looking for his girl's picture. Two hours are spent in counting the number of times his name appears. Laughs for ten minutes at the jokes he has written. Passes up altogether the literary part of the book. Frowns because his name does not stand out more prominently in organizations. Spends exactly ten minutes in actual reading. The balance of his college course he knocks the editors.

How the Bethanian Ought to be Read

READ it just like a good novel, romance, story; take it up at your odd minutes; have a just interest in the more solid literary efforts, and do your best at kindness in falling into the spirit of every single joke. Look at the Bethanian three or four times a week, till you are thoroughly familiar with it. It was worked up with much labor to cheer your heart for a year. Be sure to enjoy it from cover to cover, for you may be on the annual board yourself some time.

PASCOE THE WONDER.

(Tune: "Everybody Works But Father.")

Everybody flunks but Pascoe
And he gets ninety-nine;
Reads every day in Cicero,
And never misses a line.
When Prof. Perry calls upon him
The words begin to flow;
Everybody flunks in our class
But old Pascoe.

Everybody works but Pascoe
And he sits around all day;
Thinks he fires the furnace,
But really does nothing but play,
In the Dormitory in the morning
The temperature is mighty low;
Anyone can fire a furnace
But old Pascoe.

Bethany's Bug House Record

THE FACULTY HAVE THE FOLLOWING CASES UNDER CLOSE CONSIDERATION.

CASE I.—PICKLE—Age 20. Has soured on Prof. Stewart's hands. An object of pity in Prof. Hedges' eye. He is taking the Ministerial course, but it is believed that he should be in Prof. McEvoy's department, because his mind is on the Remington.

—INCURABLE.

CASE II.—McMULLEN—Age 11. Could articulate when two years old. Talked himself into imbecility and never uttered a rational sentence since. His mind has been weakened by following the stunts of the kids in the Sunday newspapers.

—UTTERLY HOPELESS.

CASE III.—JACKSON—Age 20. Perfectly sane until he fell in love with a young lady from Toronto, Ohio. Being his first case, this preyed upon his mind and closely following this he sustained a serious injury from being pitched.

—IF CAREFULLY LOOKED AFTER HE MAY RECOVER.

CASE IV.—HUESTON—Age unknown. Strange case, little known about it. Prattles in his sleep. Dreams of being a Commodore just for Perry's sake.

—MAY BE CURED.

CASE V.—BRUNS—Age 30. A model boy. Has developed a peculiar mania for keeping still when he should speak.

—BY CAREFUL USE OF "PERUNA" HE MAY RECOVER.

CASE VI.—HUBER—Age 26. When quite young he made known to his father that he wished to become a philosopher, but at the age of 21 he became insane from overwork and was sent to Bethany College to recuperate.

—LITTLE HOPE FOR HIM.

CASE VII.—CATHERS—Age 29. Possesses an insatiable appetite. Eats "longer" than anyone else. His canine propensities enables him to trace his ancestors back to monkeydom.

—WITH PROPER EVOLUTIONARY PROCESSES HE MAY BE CIVILIZED.

CASE VIII.—NESMITH—Age doubtful. Has brain disease, caused by bursting of the cells of gray matter, and the puncturing of the egotistical cells. The fluid of the latter is very poisonous and has killed the gray matter, thereby causing him to loose his "power."

—POSITIVELY AND ABSOLUTELY INCURABLE.

CASE IX.—STUBER—Age 30. His mind has become affected by trying to find if there is any other town in Ohio besides Columbus, and whether there is any other street in Bethany except (Main's) street.

—HELPLESS.

CASE X.—EVANS—Age (?). Sad to relate that ever since childhood he has suffered from "girlitis." Though afflicted with Smallpox and Cholera, these have been cured; yet the dread disease, "girlitis," has a death-like grip on him.

—INCURABLE—A PITY.

CASE XI.—PASCOE—Age 20. At the age of 10, while trying to ride a "pony," he was thrown from it, his head striking a verb stem, causing everlasting injuries.

—CANNOT BE CURED.

CASE XII.—HUGHES—Age 18. Taken away from his mother too young. He has an idea that there is only one life to live and this is childhood.

—CASE HOPELESS UNTIL HE PUTS AWAY CHILDISH THINGS.

CASE XIII.—CAMPBELL—Age uncertain. Suffering from lack of exercise. The Faculty has prescribed evening walks to "Villa Flora," including side trips to West Liberty.

—CASE HOPEFUL.

CASE XIV.—ICE—Age 23. Worst case on Bug House record. Absolutely without an equal. Talks all the time. Dangerous at times. Head is abnormally large.

—NO HOPE.

CENTENNIAL

Disciples of Christ

1809-1909

The Centennial of The Disciples of Christ

WE COME to a Bethany event of the first magnitude in the Centennial Celebration of the Disciples of Christ, which will be held October 11-19, 1909, in Pittsburg, only because Bethany is not large enough to entertain the fifty thousand all at once. We expect all of them to come to Bethany in relays. Bethany is universally regarded as the cradle of the Restoration Movement. It is only a few miles over to Washington County, Pa., at which place the Declaration and Address was written. Nearer still is the site of the Brush Run Church, the first of the Movement. About the same distance in the opposite direction at our principal railroad station, is the Wellsburg Church, which lays strong claim to being the second oldest in the brotherhood. Bethany was not only the home throughout his active career of Alexander Campbell, the foremost champion and leader of the Reformers, but it is also his handiwork. He founded and presided over the College until his death. He built and preached in the church. His mansion with its "Lux Descendit e Coelo" study is our chief shrine. On the hillside above the old home is the cemetery whose massive stone wall encloses not only Campbell's tomb, but those of his father, Dr. Richardson, W. K. Pendleton, W. H. Woolery, J. M. Tribble and many others whose names stir memories of heroism and devotion. The hills and valleys immediately surrounding Bethany not only inspired poetic sentiments in the students of Alexander Campbell, the teacher, but furnished pastures for the sheep of Alexander Campbell, the farmer. For here was a genius eminently practical in common-place affairs.

The Four Pioneers

In this year when the hearts of a million and a half disciples turn toward Bethany as never before, we can afford to say that, although she is pre-eminent in the history of the Reformation of the Nineteenth Century, she is neither solitary nor exclusive. For before the Campbells came to America, Barton W. Stone had made in Kentucky virtually the same plea which they were soon to proclaim in Western Pennsylvania. Soon after they began their labors another Scotch Presbyterian of exalted ability and consuming zeal made his home in Pittsburg, and devoted himself to the Restoration of the Primitive church. By removing later to Carthage, Ohio, and then to Mays Lick, Ky., where his tomb stands, Walter Scott unconsciously conferred distinction upon two other localities.

The real greatness of these four, Thomas Campbell, Barton W. Stone, Alexander Campbell and Walter Scott, is nowhere more strikingly manifested than in the harmony with which they co-operated in promoting the grand enterprise of their lives, and the humility with which each learned from all the rest whatever he himself had failed to discover in the Divine Word. In addition to these four, if space permitted, forty other giants of those days could be named, each of whom manifested a child's eagerness to learn and promptness to obey God's Will.

THE FOUR PIONEERS OF THE RESTORATION MOVEMENT

Thomas Campbell was born in County Down, Ireland, February 1, 1763; married Jane Cerneigle, June, 1787; sailed for America April 8, 1807; wrote Declaration and Address in summer of 1809; immersed June 4, 1812, in Buffalo Creek; came to Bethany soon after the founding of the Buffalo Seminary, in 1819, to assist in this work and made this his permanent home after the death of his wife; presided at the first meeting of the Board of Trustees of Bethany College, May 11, 1840; died at the home of his son, the Bethany mansion, in 1854.

Alexander Campbell, born September 12, 1788, Country Antrim, Ireland; reached America September 29, 1809; assisted his father in reading the proof sheets of the Declaration and Address in the fall of the same year; married Margaret Brown, March 12, 1811, at Buffalo, Virginia; ordained to the ministry January 1, 1812, by the elders and deacons of the Brush Run church; immersed June 4, 1812; founded Buffalo Seminary in 1819; began the Christian Baptist in 1825, which he continued until 1830 and afterward started the Millennial Harbinger; founded Bethany College in 1841; wrote all his debates and publications from Bethany; reared his family at Bethany; died at the Bethany mansion March 4, 1866, and sleeps in the Campbell cemetery.

THE BETHANY CHURCH

The Bethany congregation, organized about 1826, worshiped first in a store building out in Mr. Campbell's field, between the road and the old mill. At length they erected a stone church building, which stood about on the same site where the present house of worship stands, but faced differently.

The present church, the picture of which appears above, was built prior to 1851, and it was here that Thomas Campbell preached his farewell sermon. He was brought over from the Bethany mansion on a sled drawn along under the shade of the stately row of locust trees on the first day of June, 1851, with Mrs. Decima Barclay, only a little girl, walking by his side. His subject was "The Two Great Commandments—Love to God and Love to Our Neighbors."

The history of this old church is rendered yet more sacred from the memory of a sermon preached by Alexander Campbell before the students of the College and the members of the community.

Dr. Richardson, President Pendleton, President Woolery, Professor Tribble, President McDiarmid and others of eminence, whose voices are now hushed, as well as many of the great now living, have stood within its presence and have been heard from its pulpit.

Alexander Campbell's Polyglot

The Polyglot, of which the accompanying cut shows the opening page, was presented by warm admirers of Mr. Campbell in Scotland. It was given upon the occasion of his memorable and eventful visit to the land where he gained his university education.

The Bible is printed in eight languages. It is now in the possession of Mrs. Decima Campbell Barclay, at the old Campbell mansion in Bethany, and may be seen at any time.

It stands as one of the most interesting Bibles of modern date because of its associations.

MRS. DECIMA CAMPBELL BARCLAY

The sole surviving daughter of Alexander Campbell, owner and mistress of the Bethany mansion.

BETHANY MANSION

THE OLD HOMESTEAD

FOR ninty-eight years Bethany mansion has been the home of my dear father, Alexander Campbell, and his immediate descendants. On the 12th of March, 1811, he was married here (in what is known as the "old parlor"), to Miss Margaret Brown, only child of John Brown, and after spending a week or two in Washington, Pa., with his father, Thomas Campbell, and family, the young bride and groom returned to this home, which was henceforth occupied by Mr. Campbell, until his death in March, 1866, an unbroken period of fifty-five years, in the home of his heart, that he loved so well, and when his most arduous literary labors were performed, during his long, busy and useful life, of almost seventy-eight years.

The little hexagonal study, in the yard, with its "light from above," standing among the evergreens, planted by his own hands in 1836, was built in 1840 at the same time the College was built, but he had, prior to this, taught "Buffalo Seminary" for five years, in this house, had edited the "Christian Baptist" for seven years, and the "Millinennial Harbinger" for ten years, so that a great deal of his writing was done within these walls, and a little study, just across the road in the orchard, which was removed after the building of the present study. His first wife, Margaret, died in 1827, leaving five young daughters, the eldest of whom, Jane, was married at 16 years of age to Albert Gallatin Ewing of Nashville, Tenn., just two months after her mother's death. His second marriage to Miss Selina Huntington Cakewell of Wellsburg, Virginia, occurred in 1828 giving the sweet young daughters of tender age another devoted mother to watch over and protect them with loving care and affection.

Dear old grandfather, Thomas Campbell, lived here for many years, and was totally blind for three years before his death, which occurred on January 4, 1854, and his funeral services were held in the dear "old parlor" on January 6, when he was laid beside our dear grandmother, in our own "God's Acre," where she had preceded him nineteen years, having died in 1835.

William Pendleton Campbell, the youngest son, owned and occupied the homestead farm after fathers' death in 1866, until 1880, since which time and up to the present day it has been the property of his tenth and youngest daughter, Mrs. Decima Campbell Barclay, so that it has only changed ownership twice in almost a full century! The house in 1811 contained seven rooms, a large basement kitchen and room adjoining, a parlor and two bed-rooms on the second floor, and a hall and two bed-rooms on the third floor. It is built of strong oak timbers, which are today as good as new, and the walnut weather-boarding, iron hinges and unwrought-iron nails with which it is built, will be good for another century, if properly cared for. In 1819 Mr. Campbell built an addition to his house, consisting of a hall and several large rooms, for "Buffalo Seminary," which was framed in Pittsburg, and brought down the Ohio river in a boat, as was also the old family "Grandfather clock," which has stood in the same corner of the dear old mansion for ninety years, and was placed there for the benefit of the pupils of Buffalo Seminary, and the old five-gallon coffee boiler, which gave them their morning beverage, is still up in the garret, along with the old spinning wheels and family cradle that has rocked every one of the fourteen children and many of the grand and great grandchildren! Mr. William Thaw (grandfather of Harry Thaw), Mr. Stockhouse and several other Pittsburg boys, were students here in the early twenties, as were also Moses Gool and Daniel Edgington, two very distinguished lawyers of Ohio county, Virginia, and Dr. Joseph Parkinson, a leading physician of Brooke county, Va., and Washington county, Pa., for fifty years, was educated here, Dr. Parkinson attending dear father in his last illness.

In 1836, four years before the founding of Bethany College, feeling the need of more room for his increasing family and for the entertainment of his friends and brethren, the "new parlor" and two bed-rooms adjoining were built, and connected with the main building by the long dining-room, which is 38 feet in length. The parlor was papered with "landscape paper," brought over the mountains from Philadelphia in a covered wagon, and represents the "Island of Calyso," and the story of Telamachus, which paper is still on the parlor walls and in fairly good condition, after the lapse of seventy-three years! In this "Old Homestead" have been entertained many distinguished persons of this and other lands, indeed the great and the good of the earth here have found welcome and repose. Two Presidents, James A. Garfield and Jefferson Davis, have occupied the "President's Room," in which hangs a fine portrait of President Garfield, who was a Trustee of Bethany College and was many times a visitor here. Jefferson Davis brought his nephew here to College from Mississippi in 1845, long years before the "Southern Confederacy" was ever dreamed of. Judge Jeremit S. Black, Attorney General of the United States, and one of the most eminent lawyers of his day, was a devoted friend and admirer, who visited here on several occasions, the most notable of which was when he came from Somerset, Pa., in 1849, to be baptized under the clump of Elm trees, in Buffalo Creek, just across the meadow, below the house, and again, when he came to deliver the address at the unveiling of the marble bust of Mr. Campbell. This bust was made in Florence, Italy, by Kentucky's famous sculptor, Joel T. Hart, and was presented to Bethany College by Mrs. Selina Huntington Campbell, who came to this house a bride on August 1, 1828, and loved its sacred walls until she died here in 1890, almost ninety-five years old, having survived her beloved husband for thirty-one years. Here in early times came often the "beloved disciple," Walter Scott, and Samuel Church of Pittsburg, grandfather of Samuel Harden Church, the author, who is today one of Pittsburg's prominent men; also John T. Johnson and Philip S. Fall of Kentucky, David S. Bonnet, Isaac Errett, Harrison Jones and J. P. Robinson of Ohio, James Challen of Philadelphia, Robert Y. Henley, Leinsey Coleman and Dr. Judson T. Barclay of Eastern Virginia, beloved friends and brethren, who have all been numbered long ago among the "Sainted dead." How they once made the walls of the "dear old parlor" echo with their fervent prayers and songs of praise! John Dearborn, Moses E. Lard, Alexander Procter, Charles Lewis Loos and J. W. McGarvey were students here of the long ago, and the two last mentioned yet survive.

Of the fourteen children born in this house, twelve now sleep near dear father and mother, in the quiet hillside cemetery; four of them died in infancy and youth, but ten grew up to womanhood and manhood, beneath this roof, and seven daughters went forth happy brides from the portals of this dear "old homestead."

In one of Owen Westass' books there is a pathetic description of an old family house down in South Carolina that corresponds in many respects to this dear old homestead, that I feel it is most appropriate to quote it here: "There stands a quiet house, about which there hangs a gravity, that comes from seeing and suffering much, and sweetness, from having sheltered many generations of smiles and tears."

The long linked chain of births and deaths here has not been broken and scattered, and the grandchildren look out of the same windows, from which their grandsires gazed, whose faces, now in picture frames, still watch serenely the busy present from the happy past. Therefore, the rooms lie in still depths of association, and from the walls, the stairs, the furniture, flows the benign influence of undispersed memories; it sheds its tempered radiance upon the old miniatures, and from every fresh flower that comes in from the garden, it seems to pass through the open doors, to and fro, like a tranquil blessing; it is beyond joy and pain, because time has distilled it from both of these; it is the assembled essence of kinship and blood unity, enriched by each succeeding brood, that is born, is married, is fruitful in its turn, and dies remembered."

—D. C. BARCLAY.

BETHANY MANSION IN SUMMER

ALEXANDER CAMPBELL'S STUDY

CAMPBELL MONUMENT

by using all due means in our power to promote it, and also, that we have sufficient reason to rest assured that our humble and well-meant endeavours, shall not be in vain in the Lord. Cause himself The cause that we advocate is not our own peculiar, nor the cause of any party, considered as such, it is a common cause, the cause of Christ and our brethren of all denominations. All that we presume, then, is to do, what we humbly conceive to be our duty, in connexion with our brethren, to each of whom it equally belongs, as to us, to exert ~~themselves~~ for this blessed purpose. And as we have no just reason to doubt the concurrence of our brethren, to accomplish an object so desirable in itself, and fraught with such happy consequences, so neither can we look forward to that happy event, which will forever put an end to our hapless divisions, and restore to the church its primitive unity, purity and prosperity, but, in the pleasing prospect of their hearty and dutiful concurrence.

both in Dearly beloved brethren, why should we deem it a thing incredible, that the church of Christ, in this highly favored country, should resume that original unity, peace, and purity, which belongs to its constitution, and constitutes its glory? Or, is there any thing that can be justly deemed necessary for this desirable purpose, both to conform to the model, and adopt the practice, of the primitive church, expressly exhibited in the New Testament? Whatever alterations this might produce in any or all of the churches, should, we think, neither be deemed inadmissible nor ineligible. Surely such alteration would be every way for the better, and not for the worse; unless we should suppose the divinely inspired rule to be faulty, or defective. Were we, then, in our church constitution and managements, to exhibit a complete conformity to the Apostolic church, would we not be in that respect, as perfect as Christ intended we should be? And should not this suffice us?

4 It is, to us, a pleasing consideration that all the churches of Christ, which mutually acknowledge each other as such, are not only agreed in the great doctrines of faith and holiness; but are also materially agreed, as to the positive ordinances of Gospel institution; so that our differences, at most, are about the things in which the kingdom of God does not consist, that is, about matters of private opinion, or human invention. What a pity, that the kingdom of God should be divided about such things!! Who, then, would not be the first amongst us, to give up with human inventions in the worship of God; and to cease from imposing his private opinions upon his brethren; that our breaches might thus be healed? Who would not willingly conform to the original pattern laid down in the New Testament, for this happy purpose? Our dear brethren, of all denominations, will please to consider, that we have our educational prejudices, and particular customs to struggle ~~with~~ as well as they. But this we do sincerely declare, that there is nothing we have hitherto received as matter of faith or practice, which is not expressly taught and enjoined in the word of God, either in express terms, or approved precedent; that we would not heartily relinquish, that so we might return to the origi-

THE DECLARATION AND ADDRESS

Declaration and Address

STUDENTS of the first decade in Bethany College are fond of telling stories of a blind patriarch with silken silvery hair and gracious mien. Occasionally he preached in Bethany church. More often he presided at the Lord's table. Any time between Sunday's, Thomas Campbell could be found at the home of his son, Alexander.

Those who had received their first impression of this revolutionary religious force from the debates of Alexander Campbell, or the evangelism of Walter Scott, or the polemical periodicals extensively circulated not only by them and by Barton W. Stone, but by several other leaders of the Movement, were surprised to be introduced to this gentle old man as the author of the document which all the Reformers acknowledged as the compendium of their plea.

So today those who have known the Disciples as a very Ishmael among the religious bodies of America need to read the Declaration and Address to catch the real spirit and genius of the propoganda. It is a plea for peace in the family of God. And we are reminded that the Prince of Peace himself began by causing confusion and strife among the children of men. It proposed not a temporary truce, not a treaty of compromise and convention, but actual and permanent union of all the warring sects. To find a sure and unquestionable basis for this union, it disregarded all human platforms and turned to the Christ himself, and to the teachings and example of his immediate Apostles. After forty years of proving its principles in the crucible of the press, in the arena of public debate, and in the alembic of private discussion, Alexander Campbell said to this document: "In all my intercourse with the Christian world I have never found a man who could offer one objection plausible in the least to any position taken in the Declaration and Addresses."

Bethany's Centennial Prospects

THROUGHOUT its history students have come up to Bethany by all roads and from all distances. Graduating, they have borne her fame even more widely than she had called their allegiance. Being the original college and for two generations the capital of the Movement, she naturally became not only ALMA MATER to thousand's but ALMA ALMARUM MATRUM MATER to tens of thousands.

Throughout the Centennial Campaign all have argued that whatever else might be done the feast would lack its crowning satisfaction, unless a monumental addition were added to Bethany's endowment and equipment. This, not only for what she was, but for what she and is to be. For with all her changing fortunes and greivous trials, no year has passed without the graduation of a class of noble and prepared youth. Lately the numbers have greatly increased and the standard that could not be raised steadily maintained.

Ordinary aspirations would have been satisfied with our President's achievement in the completion of the trolley line. But Bethany could not consider this as more than an indispensable means to a necessary end. This was the burden of Commencement 1907. Our venerable Alumnus, W. T. Moore, was its chief spokesman and became the accredited agent of the Centennial Endowment Campaign. At the International Convention of Churches of Christ in Norfolk that year it came up on every hand, its most impassioned advocate being R. A. Long, the lumber genius of Kansas City.

Now we have the tangible and practical proposition from an unnamed disciple, that he will give $25,000 for every subscribed by others before Oct. 1, 1909, until $500,000 is raised. The Centennial question now for every one who loves, or even appreciates, Bethany is, shall our friends be compelled to give less than $100,000?

The Centennial Convention

IN ADDITION to the regular annual sessions of the International Convention raised to the hundredth power, there will be three days peculiar to the Centennial. Saturday, Oct. 16th, will be Centennial Day. The following eight Centennial themes will be presented in five parallel sessions by forty of the ablest speakers of the church.

- I. Origin of the Restoration Movement.
- II. Thomas Campbell and the Principles he Promulgated.
- III. Alexander Campbell, Barton W. Stone and Walter Scott, Advocates of Liberty and Union in the Truth.
- IV. Isaac Errett's Contribution to the Movement.
- V. Progress and Achievements of a Hundred Years.
- VI. Outlook and Appeal
- VII. The Place of the Lord's Supper in the Movement.
- VIII. The Lordship of Christ.

Sunday, Oct. 17th, will be distinguished from ordinary Convention Sundays by transforming the usual courtesy of occupying all offered pulpits into a real service performed by five hundred of the leading preachers of the Movement, in declaring the first principles of the Gospel in all the most important churches within fifty or sixty miles of Pittsburgh. The Centennial Communion service Sunday afternoon is anticipated by those who have enjoyed the fellowship of such conventions as those at Cincinnati and St. Louis as the nearest possible earthly approach to the final assembly of the "Great multitude which no man can number." Not less than twenty-five thousand people will sit together in this memorial feast.

Monday, October 18th, will be devoted to a full presentation in all departments of the Teaching Function of the Church of Christ, and Tuesday the 19th, the Centennial Celebration will culminate in a great field day of New Testament Evangelism. The purpose is not only to worthily celebrate the century that is closing, but to inaugurate the century ahead in such a way as to greatly accelerate the answer to the Savior's prayer in John 17.

A Campaign of Betterment

JUST as America celebrated the four hundredth anniversary of the continent's discovery by a great exhibition of the fruits of the land and products of its industries, in the City of Chicago, so it was determined that the hundredth anniversary of the rediscovery of a lost continent of God's truth should be made memorable by gathering at Pittsburgh in 1909 reports of unprecedented betterment in all departments of Christian life and service. We humbly submit to the test: "By their fruits ye shall know them." We claim to possess and to follow the word of God. We seek in the Centennial year to manifest the fruit of the Spirit by realizing or approximating as nearly as possible the following:

CENTENNIAL AIMS

INDIVIDUAL.

Daily worship in every home.
Each one win one.
Two Christian papers, state and national, in every home.
Not less than my income's tithe to God.
Go! my benefactor and my heir.
An offering from every disciple to some Christian College.
Every home anti-saloon territory.

CONGREGATIONAL.

All the Church and as many more in the Bible School.
All the Church in the prayer meeting.
Every Church its mission.
Every preacher preaching.
Every Church well-housed; every Church debt paid.
Every Church in the state co-operation.
A men's organization in every Church.

INSTITUTIONAL.

The College for the Church, the Church for the College, both for Christ.
The American Christian Missionary Society $200,000; 4,000 contributing Churches, 1,000 evangelists.
Christian Woman's Board of Missions, 85 women in auxiliaries and circles, $200,000 in new stations.
The Foreign Christian Missionary Society, $400,000 in 1909, $250,000 for buildings by 1909.

A Million Dollars in the Church Extension Fund.
Relief for all disabled minister, permanent fund, $50,000.
The restoration of the apostolic ministry of benevolence, $200,000 added to its permanent fund.

GENERAL—THIS YEAR.

A thousand recruits to the ministry.
Ten thousand organized adult classes.
Two hundred thousand trained workers.
First place in Christian Endeavor.
Fifty thousand at Pittsburgh.
Two million dollars for missions, benevolence and education.
The promotion of Christian union by its practice.

To stimulate endeavor toward the realization of these aims, a Centennial Bureau has been maintained for four years in charge of R. W. Warren, Secretary, and supported by the co-operation of all the organizations and institutions of the brotherhood. The campaign itself is a vindication of the principle of union. The Secretary has traveled thirty-five or forty thousand miles a year visiting conventions and churches, millions of pages of literature have been distributed, including twenty-five thousand copies of the Declaration and Address. The original missionary aim of "Million for Missions in 1909" was reached two years ahead of time. The initial teacher-training aim of "Five Thousand Graduates" has been multiplied to an enrollment of two hundred thousand. Progress in all directions has been almost equally striking.

CENTENNIAL CONVENTION EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Centennial Quadrangle

IT is more than a happy coincidence that one of the greatest cities of America is located within an hour's ride of the most historic scenes connected with the inauguration of this Christian Union Movement. The transportation facilities which put Pittsburgh's tonnage far in the lead of all world centers will be equally convenient for assembling the hosts of pilgrims to the Centennial. It seems providential also that within this great city has been developed a new center of its higher life at the entrance to Schenley Park. No other city in the country could have provided such a magnificent setting for the Centennial Convention. Within this Quadrangle are located seven splendid Protestant churches and St. Paul's Roman Catholic Cathedral. Here is the Pittsburgh Conservatory of Music, the University Club and the Pittsburgh Athletic Club. The new buildings of the University of Pittsburgh, and the Carnegie Technical Schools exchange the courtesies of the morning and the evening from opposite hills.

The four angles of the square are marked: First, by Carnegie Institute with its Art Galleries, Museum, Public Library, to whose maintenance the City of Pittsburgh appropriates $250,000 per year, and Music Hall, one of the Centennial Auditoriums. Second, by Duquesne Garden which can be used at will as an auditorium for eight thousand persons, a dining room for half that number, or an exhibit hall for the graphic display of this department of the celebration. Third, the Soldiers' Memorial Hall, which Allegheny County is erecting at a cost of a million and a quarter dollars. Fourth, the new Baseball Park, whose million dollar Amphitheater of steel and concrete will be separated into three sections by sound-proof partitions, and enclosed on the field side with a canvas wall for the ordinary sessions of the Convention, and used in its entirety for the Communion service on the Lord's day.

Between the last two is situated Schenley Hotel, one of the finest residence hostleries in America, which will be the Headquarters Hotel for the occasion.

THE CENTENNIAL QUADRANGLE.

Schenley Hotel, Centennial Headquarters.

Baseball Amphitheater, Centennial Offices and Auditoriums.

Soldiers' Memorial Hall.

Duquesne Garden, Auditorium for 8,000 or Dining Room for 4,000.

Carnegie Institute Music Hall, Museum, Library, Art Galleries.

The Roll Call of the Million

A FREE people makes of its enterprises whatsoever it will. It adapts plans and programs to its purposes as it chooses, without asking leave of those with whom they originated. An army enlisted to preserve the union of states did that, but is remembered chiefly for having freed the slaves. No man can tell beforehand what will be the chief feature of a great popular Convention. Every such gathering has its dominant message. Speakers drawn from the four quarters of the earth bring their manuscript in their hands and are astonished to find their words fitting together like the pieces of Solomon's temple. So will be the Centennial.

But its greatest message will probably be no spoken, eloquent word, but the mute testimony not only of the fifty thousand earnest souls who are bodily present, but also of the million who are there in spirit and purpose and tangibly by their names inscribed in the Centennial Roll Books. For every congregation, whether in Pennsylvania, India, Australia or Texas, is given a book of suitable size in which to record its whole membership. The books will be collected at Pittsburgh before the Centennial to form a monumental feature of the occasion. Afterwards they will preserve perpetually in a brotherhood depository and a duplicate copy placed in the Library of Congress at Washington. It is a Petition of a million for the righting of a wrong. It is the acclaim of the million, and of the coming millions whom we represent for the Coronation of our King.

Pittsburgh's Hospitality

TO properly provide for the comfort and enjoyment of the delegates and visitors, the churches in Western Pennsylvania have subscribed a fund of $8,000 and the business interests of the City a larger amount. In addition the Railroad Companies have granted special rates, the hotels arranged for extra accommodations at ordinary prices, and thousands of private homes opened their doors at nominal rates. The hundreds of places of interest, historic, scenic, commercial and industrial about the City will be shown to the Centennial visitors at the most convenient times and under the most agreeable conditions.

The solemn earnestness of the Centennial in its sublime purpose and its awful solitude among the years will not be lowered but heightened by the human interest of the delegates in all that pertains to man. Sight-seeing and excursions will abound. Family reunions and college banquets will fill all vacant hours. Side-trips to Niagara, New York and Washington, D. C., will occupy the days that follow Oct. 19th, and many an "Old Home Week" will be enjoyed, unheralded by any printed program. It is only once in a hundred years! We must be great, but we may also be glad!

A FEW PASTORATES HELD BY BETHANY STUDENTS

End

Thank heaven it's over; the proofs are read,
We've worried and worked till we're nearly dead,
But good or bad, at least we are through,
And now with its failures on its head
We hand it wearily over to you.

Knock, if you think to knock's a sign
That your critical sense is keen and fine.
We're just so glad that the blamed thing 's done
That we wouldn't fuss with another line
For you or anyone.

Acknowledgement

Even with the untiring zeal of the Board of Editors this volume would not have been possible but for the kind assistance of printers, artists and photographers. We owe an especial debt of gratitude to the following:

The Stafford Engraving Co. of Indianapolis, Ind., for their promptness and courtesy.

The H. C. Cook Co. of Steubenville, Ohio, for the many favors shown us.

To Rev. W. R. Warren and Prof. Philip Johnson for valuable assistance rendered in the compiling of the Centennial material.

To Pres. Cramblet and Prof. A. C. Pendleton for furnishing us with many valuable cuts.

We especially thank our advertisers, whose patronage we bespeak for our readers.

AN extra color is often decidedly effective and a STAFFORD "Duotype" (two color half-tone) is inexpensive and easy to print. A few color inserts will relieve the monotony of black and white pictures and give to your book superb richness. This subject was produced direct from an ordinary photograph and is printed in blue and red. Other happy color combinations are black and orange, black and green, etc. If interested in color work you are invited to write for further information and other samples.

THIS year the STAFFORD ENGRAVING CO. did all the engraving for more than two hundred college and school publications. We should like you to write to the managers of some of them and inquire about our work, our service and our way of doing business. We believe we have made a friend of every manager and editor with whom we did business.

Our book of instructions, "Engraving for College and School Publications," is indispensable to the staff of any annual or periodical. We spent more than $1,000.00 in producing this book, but it is free to you. Write to us about it. Your work will be made easy by following its instructions, which are the result of our eighteen years' experience in doing this kind of work.
